

‘Kids Corner Literacy Stories’ Named One of the Top Products of the Year

LITTLETON, MA. (July 7, 2000) – Sundance Publishing today announced that Kids Corner Literacy Stories won a District’s Choice Top 100 award from Curriculum Administrator magazine.

Kids Corner Literacy Stories demonstrate ways that kids use reading, writing, spelling and counting in the real kids’ world. In each Literacy Story, children discover that when they can read, write, spell or count, they have a real advantage over a pet who cannot.

“Kids Corner Literacy Stories provide educators with engaging tools to illustrate the value of literacy skills. We congratulate Sundance Publishing and Kids Corner Literacy Stories on being named one of the top products of the year by our readers and editorial staff,” said Wayne D’Orio, editorial director of Curriculum Administrator.

Curriculum Administrator announced this year’s District’s Choice Top 100 Products in its June 2000 issue. To select the winning products, Curriculum Administrator considered all products released during the previous 12 months. The list was compiled through input from a varied, knowledgeable group that included Curriculum Administrator editors and correspondents plus the 60,000 administrators who receive the magazine each month.

Curriculum Administrator explores the successful use of curriculum and technology-related products in the classroom. Each issue features product information, classroom applications, expert advice, documented data, and research. Curriculum Administrator reaches all key district level decision makers, from superintendents to federal programs administrators to curriculum area specialists. This is the 13th year the magazine has published a District’s Choice Top 100 awards program.
